SOME OF THE RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED. On taking the chair Mr. Frost made a short address, and the Committee on Resolutions then brought in their "Protest of Wool Manufacturers," of which this is the opening sentence:

"The allied industries represented by this meeting, including all branches of the manufacture and sale of woollen goods, carpets and knit goods, and the wholesale clothing and cloak manufacture, speak for an investment of capital far exceeding five hundred millions of dollars, far exceeding five hundred millions of dollars, embarked in business under the laws of the United States on the good faith of the Government that its citizens shall be duly guarded in their vested property rights. As American citizens we have assembled to protest against the enactment of a law which threatens to destroy a large part of this capital."

It arraigns the framers of the Wilson bill, and shows that "our markets are given as a gift to foreign manufacturers," and the protest is made "not only as manufacturers, but also in behalf of the laborer employed in these industries, including, under normal business conditions, no cluding, under normal business conditions, no less than 500,000 persons."

The resolutions end with this appeal: "We appeal to the patriotism of an American Congress to prevent the consummation of this national misfortune; and we appeal to our fellow-citi-zens in every walk of life to second our protest against a legislative act of extirpation."

The resolutions were adopted unanimously

amid cheers. THE OBJECTIONABLE MEASURE DENOUNCED.

Ex-Lieutenant-Governor W. H. Halle, of Massachusetts, then made a forcible argument against the Wilson bill. "We are opposed to the radical change in our economic system," he said. woollen industry is concerned, will embarrass, will cripple and bring distress. The contest between protection and free trade is now before the people, and who doubts that should an election take place to-morrow the advecates of Protection would sweep the land like a whirlwind?"

A letter was read from George W. Bramhall, of Bramhall Bros., No. 59 Leonard-st., a Democrat, who denounced in unmeasured terms the Wilson bill. A letter was also read from Cornelius N. Bliss in which he expressed his regret at being "The Wilson bill, if passed, in so far as the

AN ITALIAN SHOOTS HIS TWO BROTHERS

HE THOUGHT THEY WERE CONSPIRING TO KILL HIM-WHEN THEY MADE BEADY TO SHAVE HIM HE EMPTIED HIS REVOLVER AT THEM.

Andrea Delconte, a crazy Italian laborer, shot and dangerously wounded his two brothers at No. 20 Mulherry-st, yesterday afternoon because he thought they had conspired to kill him. Five Delconte brothers, all married and having familles in Italy, came to this city eighteen months ago to look for work as ordinary laborers. Two of the brothers have been employed lately on a railroad near Sing Sing. Luigi, thirty-seven years old, and Gaetano, thirty-four years, have occupied a room on the third floor of the house No. 29 Mulberry-st. Andrea, who is thirty years old, lived with them for a time, but lately he went to live with another Italian at No. 27 Mulberry-st. He visited his brothers frequently. They and other Italians in Mulberry Hend declared imagined that somebody was constantly conspiring murder and rob him.

A week ago his brothers persuaded Andrea to draw his money out of the bank and buy a ticket for Italy. But Andrea suddenly changed his mind and clared that he was going to stay in New-York, He did not cease to talk about conspiracles. Yesterday afternoon he went to visit his brothers at No. 20 Mulberry-st., and they noticed that he had not been shaved for several days.

"Why don't you get shavel?" one of the brothers

"I have no money," was his reply. "We will shave you," said Luigt, reaching for a razor and beginning to whet it. "Yes, we will shave you," Gaetano said, taking

A wild light shone in Andrea's eyes as he watched the preparations for a shave. Then he shricked: "You never will shave me! "You never will shave me!" from his pocket, he began to shoot rapidly at his brothers. He fired until he had emptied the chambers of the weapon, and three of the bullets took effect. Luia fed on the floor with a bullet in the right side of his heat. Gaetano went down with bullets in his breast and in the back of his neck. Andrea fied and had disappeared before a policeman could be called to the house. The shooting and the escape of the crazy man caused much excitement in the Mulberry Bend and a number of Italians declared that they would abl the pelice in trying to find Andrea. They kept their word. Andrea stole back to the Mulberry Bend in the evening, and was quickly caught and locked up. The wounded brothers were taken to the Chambers Street Hospital in an ambulance.

JERSEY CITY. SEEKING DIVORCE FROM A SCHOOL PRIN-

Before Vice-Chancellor Green, at Jersey City yesterday, Mrs. Armenia Chadwick began a suit against Albert F. Chadwick for divorce on the grounds of cruelty. Plaintiff and defendant told remarkable stories. Their acquaintance began, Mrs. Chadwick testified, through a matrimonial bureau. She says that Mr. Chadwick implored her to marry him, seading her four letters daily until she consented. They went in a ceach to a minister, and after the ceremony Mr. Chadwick said he had not arranged to take her to his home, he being a wideover with four children, so she told the coachman to drive to the nearest respectable botel. There was no wedding breakfast next day, but Mr. Chadwick took her home, where they feasted on stewed prunes, bread and butter and weak tea. The four children, she soid, ate with their flugers and licked the plates when they had finished the meal. Mr. Chadwick testified that his wife used whiskey and cocaine because she could not go to sleep, and every morning he was obliged to make the fire, cook the breakfast, sweep the rooms, and wash the children. His wife wanted his money, and in three weeks drove him crazy. He was removed to the lunatic asylum at Morris Plains, where he was cured. The case went over to February II. Greco is probably the most accompished swordsman seen in this country in long time. He characterized the decision of the reference

Wallace Ross, as outrageous.

The match was for $1,000 a side and a side wager of $400, and Ress yesterday received the $1,400. Ross said that Greco was the best swordsmen that he had ever seen, but that with the broadswords the Italian was out of his element.
